The app, however, subpar. No updates for one year, and not optimized for iPhone X. Updates: I think we should be able to customize what all items should look like, so if i need examples or collocations i wouldn't have to press bothes all the time. Second, even if the app works well on my iPhone (6s plus) and iPad Pro, it doesn't look good on iPad Pro, it doesn't look good on iPad Pro, at least one example of a full sentence. This feature is for students of English L2. Previous review: I have virtually all dictionary apps, but LDOCE-6 is the best. Well-chosen examples, with audio, a lot of useful information (collocations, thesaurus, frequency, etymology). Most importantly, this dictionary is the result of a careful and body-based research done by professional lexicographers and not some easily googlable free things quickly assembled. I strongly recommend to apprentices English speakers. Improvement and my two suggestions µ by chialungni (using Pcmac) Suggestion 1. It is difficult to access the word information, table of verbs, and thesaurus, which are all hidden under the bot "i". This information is µ useful, and the project makes me feel inconvenient compared to LDOCE5. I suggest you move this information using the application. At least it shows the time and the battery. Other than that, I think this app is pretty robust. For Akiiiiu (using Pcmac) I've been using this dictionary for years, honestly speaking, LDOCE was much better and simpler, I need the quick access to collocalization ues and phrasal verbs.
