I'm making a horror game and need some advice on what's not. (Also, sorry if the things in this post are not explained correctly, since english isn't my first language) Okay, so first of all here's some important things about the game: The game will be 13+. All the blood and guts are gonna be blue. (for asthetic purposes and just so it's less violent.) No harmful content in the game, excep, will be cut out( so for example a character leaps at another character with a knife, then the screen fades to black, and then the other character is shown bleeding, etc. So the actual attack won't be seen.) There will be a huge trigger warning in the description of the game and at the beginning of it. Most importantly this game that I'm questioning whether they're allowed or not: There's gonna be a scene where the main character fights a wolf, breaks off one of it's teeth with a shovel, then once it dies she takes it's flesh (the process of taking it will not be shown, so the screen will black out and then you'll be holding a piece of flesh) You(the player playing as the main character) will make spells and stuff, which are based on the religion. But still based on it) At a point in the game you'll sacrifice butterflies by burning them. (They'll just turn into ash right away) There will be mentions of religious abuse, where a character cuts a cross into a character's hand(I will also cut out the part where it happens and just show the actual carved cross) A creature like it (there's a reason for it) Mentions of gambling addiction (I read in the 13+ description that unplayable gambling is allowed, and the gambling won't be played in any way, you(as the player), will just watch. And also, again, I'll be highlighting that gambling is not a good thing (I'm not sure how to describe this without giving away the plot of the game) A character slitting the main character will survive, but nonetheless.) A character getting hit by a car. Schizophrenia (I'm not sure how to explain this either), but there will be varned as unhealthy, and the whole game is about healing, changing for the better, and cutting negative people out of your life) And that's basically it. Again I do not condone any harmful behavior in this game (I don't know why I say that so much, I'm just really paranoid of getting banned for some reason). And the reason I'm even making this post is because I started writing the story for this horror game a while ago and almost at the end remembered that ToS exists- I saw someone on devforum talk about getting banned for a leaf texture, so I'm just really scared- Anyway, thank you for reading my post! 2 Likes I'm a new game developer by the way, so im not sure how this works. 1 Like Some stuff is pushing some boundries but since its 13+, I think it should be fine as long as the gore is contained. Don't know much about the religious stuff tho. 2 Likes Thank you for sone more people to leave feedback though, just in case. 1 Like Thank you for suggesting the post! I read it, and it does answer a lot, but i still have some questions. So i dont teally know wether the religious stuff's alowed yet. And also in the post it said that things associated with gambling (poker, etc) are not allowed. Would it be allowed if i didnt show the gambling at all, and instead just said it happened and then showed the consequences? (I just dony really understand that part) Also i forgot to mention that the animal starves due to the gambling addiction, so would that be considered animal abuse? (Also, sorry for replying late, i have classes at the moment) I suggest you take the experience questionnaire that will guide you and answer a lot of your questions you have here. To do that you go here: click on your experience > Audience > Maturity & Compliance. Your experience can be empty, this is just to do the questionnaire. Keep in mind the target audience of Roblox where about 42 percent of users are under 13 years old. 1 Like Okay, thank you, I'll try that! =] 1 Like sasha koshyk: A character slitting the main character's throat (the main character will survive, but nonetheless.) yeah you cant do that, a very popular game (which i dont remember) got taken down because the player could cut the necks of enemies, and when resetting the character it showed the player solution of religious abuse, where a character cuts a cross into a character's hand(I will also cut out the part where it happens and just show the actual carved cross) this CAN be done, but mentioning ANY religion is against ToS. so if you have to make it fictional, if you dont want to change symbols and references, give a fictional name. sasha koshyk: A creature (not human, nor animal, I can't really describe it) will be found in a cave eating another creature like it (there's a reason for it) i mean this is a gray zone: if the creature have an humanoid appareance, ehh i dont know. but if the creature is visibly deformed OR has an animal appareance, cool sasha_koshyk: A character getting hit by a car almost every game on roblox has car crashes, so dont worry alright thats all, you game should be fine by avoiding these things. 1 Like Hello! First of all: GabrielG: yeah you cant do that, a very popular game (which i dont remember) got taken down because the player could cut the necks of enemies, and when resetting the character it showed the player oofing hiself. so no. I'm pretty sure that it got banned not because of the throat slitting thing, but because of the character killing herself, because any mention if suicide/self harm is not allowed on Roblox. Second: GabrielG: this CAN be done, but mentioning ANY religion is against ToS. so if you have any religion scene you have to make it fictional, if you dont want to change symbols and references, give a fictional name. I've read some posts on here, and they say that mentioning religion is fine as long as it doesnt offend anyone. So I'm more concerned about the abuse part. But I'll look into it some more just to be sure. And thank you for everything else! Have a good day/night. =] sasha koshyk: mentioning religion is fine as long as it doesnt offend anyone I think we would need more context then. Because if you're portraying a specific group as the "bad guys" then someone is bound to get offended. It's probably better to change names and symbols unless they're not being show as good/bad or right/wrong 2 Likes Okay, so the game won't be painting any group of people as bad, and will only strictly focus on the abuse in the community instead of "how thier traditions/beliefs are wrong". The context would be that one of the character's parents is strictly religious and not allow the character to have other beliefs than them (Im not really sure how to explain this). Also this would be just a small segment of the game and not the main focus. (I'm sorry if this is worded poorly) Also this will be mentioned in the warning at the begining of the game if that helps. 1 Like I made a game that is based off of Super Smash Bros! It's currently very early in development. It's a 3d game and has a bunch of differences from Super Smash Bros. It's called Super Brawl Blox. Currently there is no map and two playable characters. You can be Red Plumber Guy or Green Elf Guy. I haven't worked on how the characters look, all I've created is the mechanics... Roblox Check out MOVED (check desc). It's one of the millions of unique, user-generated 3D experiences created on Roblox. I moved it to a group game, here is the link. It's basically a showcase of what I've learned this past few months, like RemoteEvents, pair loops, and a bunch of other stuff that I forget. I just want some feedback on it, it's pretty basic right now. It's no fun without anyone else though, so if you want to test it you should probably get someone else to play with you. This is the first game I've made that I've really coded it all myself. No looking up "how to make boat" or "how to delete stuff in backpack," just doing stuff myself. I'm proud of myself. When I develop, I get an exhilarating feeling, when I press the play button my stomach has butterflies in anticipation of my script and if it will work. Thanks! Update Log Hej Bloxburgers! PIRATE QUEST: The pirate quest has undergone a total transformation and is now packed with interactive fun! Embark on an adventure to find the keys, tackle the obstacle course, battle the skeletons, and set the pirate free from his curse! WORKER POINTS: Great news - we're keeping everyone's Worker Points safe! Although we've adjusted the minimum points needed to rank up, don't meet the new requirement for your rank right away. We won't be demoting anyone. You get to keep your current rank and all your hard-earned points as we roll out V3! WISHING WELL: Earn multiple daily rewards like hearts and more for game activity! CUSTOM GREETINGS: Easily send pre-made greetings in-chat. Customize them to your liking. SETTINGS: Configure essential parts of gameplay and gameplay codes > enter code) A quick heads-up: the entire game has been recoded from scratch and while we've conducted extensive testing, the launch may arise. Simply report any bugs in #bug-reports, adhering to the provided format. Thank you, from the bottom of our hearts, for your unwavering patience and support. Spring/Easter Update (3/02/2023) I'm so excited to announce our first update to Version 3! We have updated the map with Spring and Easter themed decorations. An all new Easter Menu: Easter Cupcake and Easter Slice of Cake New Spring and Easter items have been added to the shop! Easter Particle, Register, and Uniform, and a limited time Butterflies Particle. Kitchen Rush is back! More customers, spills, dirty tables, and dishes will spawn > during a rush! The baking stations will also work quicker. Walking over a spill will now cause you to slip and fall. Be careful! Bug Fixes + Game Improvements Delivery Update (3/16/2023) Hey everyone! I'm happy to announce our next update to the game! We've added a new Staff Duty for Senior Staff+. Deliver orders to the correct house to receive a Worker Point. Tip Hearts: Tip staff members with the in-game hearts currency! Typing Indicator Added a typing indicator above nametags. Eating Food: Food/Drinks will now disappear after taking enough bites/sips. (Planning to eventually update the eating animations) Kitchen Expansion: The kitchen has been expanded to be more open and allow customers to see in. Your order will now not automatically get unclaimed after you receive it if you are not in the kitchen. You can now restock an item when it has less than 20% of stock. VIP gamepass holders now get 2 extra overhead badge slots. I am SpiralGaia, a small developer. I do scripting, GFX, UI, and more. I am trying to achieve a new creation. A spawner if you will, that will make a model (Butterfly) fly from it and outwards until eventually despawning. I also am trying to make the wings flap. I am wondering how I would do this. I believe I would use for ,v in pairs(game.Workspace.Spawners:GetChildren()) do end for this, but I am not completely sure about it. I want to tween 2 unions (the wings) up and down as it moves, and after a random time (math.random) the butterfly despawns. Also, I would like a max amount of butterfly despawns. Also, I would like a max amount of butterfly despawns. outwards in a random direction, then despawn. Thanks! DISCONTINUATION NOTICE June 14, 2022 - we have decided to discontinue the "Butterfly" project due to a large amount of reported bugs we were unable to find a fix to. The model and documentation will remain public, but we no longer offer technical support for this product. Butterfly is a new, free, and open-source system dedicated to training or interview centers for roleplay community games, etc.). There are hundreds of developers and groups that want to make their training or application center on their own. This is where Butterfly comes in: we offer you a variety of scripts & logic that can boost up the place where players attend different types of sessions. Installing Butterfly is 100% free and very easy. To start off, you will want to take the model from ROBLOX's library. You can find it at the following link: create.roblox.com Discover millions of assets made by the Roblox community to accelerate any creation task. Once you own it, you can insert it into your game. Once done, you will notice a Folder named "Butterfly System". If you open the Folder, you will see 3 elements: a ModuleScript named "Butterfly Workspace", and put it separately inside the game's Workspace. Once you did, you can use these elements in your game's map. Do not forget to place the main "Butterfly System" Folder. Once done placing these 2 Folders, you will want to open the file named "Settings" or "Configuration". It is placed inside the main "Butterfly System" Folder (that is now supposed to be inside ServerScriptService). Inside the script you just opened, you can make changes to the system configuration. Everything is explained inside there (commented). Here is a full article on how to set Butterfly up (safe link - Freshdesk): Setting up Butterfly in your game : Session 42 Studios If you finished configuring the script, you're ready to go! Further documentation or a step-by-step tutorial on how to set up the system can be found on Session 42 Studios' "Butterfly" product As Butterfly is open-sourced, you are free to edit any files if you know what you are doing. However, we are not responsible for the system errors once you make changes to anything else besides the configuration file. Right now, the only way to contribute is to check out our product and report any bug you find or leave honest feedback. We also appreciate suggestions on what changes we could do next to Butterfly. Also, you could give credits to Session 42 Studios if you use our product if you'd want to help even more. However, please keep everything in a friendly tone. Here are a few screenshots, but you will want to try it out if you really wanna see how the system works. Screenshots (click to expand) The session details board: The teaming command for "Host": The PTS command when enabled: The PTS disableing command for "Session Supervisor": Mobile presentation video (click to expand) Link to video (safe link - OneDrive): could lead to the experience's malfunction and we're confident that it is safe to use. However, any changes you make to the system files are not our responsibility anymore. Butterfly is free to use, but the only condition is not to claim that you created the product. All credits for this belong to Session 42 Studios. We'd appreciate it if you'd give additional credits to Session 42 Studios, however, this is not a requirement. Note that Butterfly's script cannot automatically update, so if you'd like to update it to the latest version(s), you will have to re-insert the model every time you do it. The physical elements placed inside the "Butterfly Workspace" Folder can be duplicated and placed around your game's map. If you find issues or would like to suggest changes, you may leave your comment in this post or directly contact us here (safe link - Freshdesk). Butterfly is compatible with Blueberry System v1.05 and up, which will allow you to use a custom UI when activating the slock (server lock) function. 19 Likes I'm sure this will help some of developers! 1 Like This will definitly help some developers out there. Though I think I'll stick to discord, but good job !!! 1 Like I think this will be great for those who is new to the cafe community + for someone who doesn't know how to script! 2 Likes This is not working for me, I just did the stuff in the settings script. I also delted some things I did not need like the stage, and locked training door. Am I doing something wrong? And also a bug I found is your time is off by a hour. 1 Like Hi! If you could be great! And the time is EST. Wow! Session 42 Studios always come out with astonish job!! 2 Likes Thank you for supporting us for so long! 2 Likes Alright I will get some screenshots soon. And Ik the time is EST but I am EST and the time is est but I am EST and the time is a hour behide because of DLS. " devconsole errors This is probably because of DLS." me on DevForum so I can assist you further. 1 Like I would love a built in announcement panel, or a command that would state the rules and basic introduction for the training, though the current features stand alone as a great resource. I hope you continue to update and add to this model, good work! 2 Likes What's blueberry btw. Blueberry is another product developed by us. Fixed a long-standing bug in the shop bat caused New, Limited and Robux-only Props to display incorrectly Improved the nametag display button in the shop soon! Updated the New indicator for Prop, Effect and Nametag shop listings Improved Flashback's stability slightly in preparation for future additions Made some infrastructure changes for avatars and outfits Fixed a long-standing bug that caused traversal emotes to glitch out or display incorrectly Removed the "BrokenAudio" category from recognition There's no way to convert a shirt template to a website asset id. I did go through the Inspect and Buy (Examine) CoreScripts to try and understand how it was displaying the character's individual assets as purchasable items but most of these are derived from the HumanoidDescription. There are two ways you can handle this. The best way is to use a HumanoidDescription. There are two ways you can handle this case and the engine will take care of rendering it onto characters for you. The other method is to manually store both the asset id and the template id in a place where you can reference it later. If you go with the HumanoidDescription method and it conflicts with your own set up of your mannequins/avatars/whatever then convert as much of the customisation as you can to the HumanoidDescription object, apply it first then apply any other assets you want afterward. You need to use the description first because it's authoritative of the character's appearance (clears unassociated assets off the character and then applies what the description specifies). InspectAndBuy if you want to scroll through the avatar inspect menu. It's a Roact-based feature so there's a few hoops that you need to jump through to find some things especially if you're not familiar with Roact (which I'm not, so it took a decent amount of time to find the source for fetching assets).
