State Senator Adam Hinds is a husband and a new father, who has only strengthened his lifelong desire to ensure that the next generation is better than his. He grew up in a small town in western Massachusetts and went to a high school where his father was a teacher and coach, and his mother was a librarian. Her parents made it clear that working for the greater good was everyone's responsibility. Adam attended Wesleyan University and received a master's degree from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. Then he joined the United Nations and spent almost ten years in the Middle East. He is based in Baghdad, Iraq, where he was the team leader of a United Nations-led negotiation between the Kurdistan Region and the government of Iraq in the disputed territory. In Jerusalem, he was Regional Advisor to the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process. He worked for former UN Secretary General Kofi Annan to establish a ceasefire in Syria in 2012 and was part of a team to eliminate Syria's chemical weapons program. Adam believes the same skills and spirit of problem solving that he has used abroad make him a powerful supporter and voice on Beacon Hill, where he represents the largest Massachusetts district legislature since he was elected on November 8, 2016. Currently, Senator Hinds serves as chair of a new Senate committee on "Reimagining MA: Post-Pandemic Resilience" and the Senate chair of the Joint Revenue Committee. He is vice-chairman of the Senate Committee on Intergovernmental Affairs and a member of the Senate's powerful Committee on Ways and Means. Is an active member of legislative caucuses for gateway cities, regional transit authorities, criminal justice reform, regional schools, clean energy the food systems and serves as co-president Senate of the Rural Caucus and vice-president Senate of the Cultural Caucus. Before joining the Senate, Adam was the founding director of Pittsfield Community Connection, a youth violence program. He also conducted the coalition of the Northern Berkshire community, based in North Adams, which allows residents to respond to local challenges, including issues related to employment and mental health. Currently in his career, Adam worked for the former congressist John Oliver and was part of John Kerry's Campaign for the President in which he worked for Rice Susan, the head of his foreign policy team that later became the US National Security Advisor.adam is married to Dr. Alicia Mireles Christoff, associate professor of English at Amherst College. Their son, Rafael Fernando Hinds, was born in May 2021. ã. ã "Mit's innovations often face problems that most humanity needs to solve, including sustainable energy, urban resilience, Fresh water, food for everyone, cancer, Alzheimer, and infectious disease.
